

2010 Elections: Women's Rights and Health on the Line

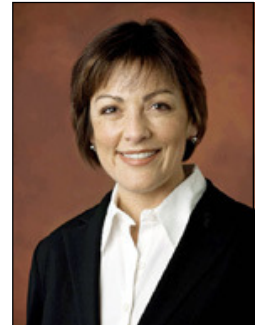

Pro-choice champion Senator Patty Murray

Many of our pro-choice leaders are in races that are too close for comfort.

Pro-choice Senator Patty Murray is running neck-and-neck with anti-choice, anti-birth control challenger Dino Rossi. Rossi now says he only "maybe" thinks women who have been raped or are the victims of incest should be able to access abortion care. His right-wing views have earned him the endorsements of the Family Research Council and the National Right to Life Committee.

sure pro-choice candidates win in November.

NARAL Pro-Choice Washington's state-wide network of members and activists can and will make the difference this November. In 2008, pro-choice candidates won up and down the ballot. In fact, 87 out of 102 NARAL-endorsed candidates were elected in 2008.

Pro-choice congressional candidate Suzan DelBene (8th District). Suzan is running against anti-choice Rep. Dave Reichert.

Elections matter. Because of our pro-choice majority in the state legislature, we have passed important legislation, including the Healthy Youth Act, which requires sex education programs taught in Washington public schools to be comprehensive and medically accurate. We have also been able to secure funding for family planning care in the state budget, despite steep cuts in other areas.

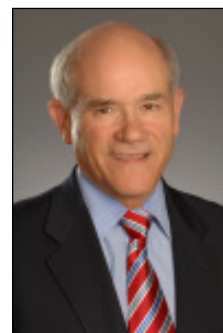

Two pro-choice Congressional seats are at risk, and pro-choice Suzan DelBene is running a strong race against anti-choice Rep. Dave Reichert in the 8th district. Many of our pro-choice state legislators are in very tight races.

Pro-choice Congressman Rick Larsen (2nd District). He is being challenged by John Koster, a Tea Party, anti-choice conservative.

In the State Supreme Court, NARAL Pro-Choice Washington-endorsed candidate Charlie Wiggins is challenging anti-choice conservative Justice Richard Sanders.

Several ballot initiatives also have a direct impact on our state's ability to continue to fund critical programs like family planning care for low-income women (see page 5 for more on the initiatives).

Charlie Wiggins, NARAL-endorsed State Supreme Court candidate. Wiggins is challenging anti-choice Justice Richard Sanders.

The only way to pass pro-choice policies at the state and federal levels – and to block anti-choice attacks on women's rights and health – is to elect pro-choice leaders at all levels of the ballot.

Use the Pro-Choice Voter Guide on pages 4 and 5 and vote in the November 2 General Election.

It is imperative that we keep our policymakers and our policies pro-choice. NARAL's staff and volunteers are working hard to make Pro-choice congressional candidate Denny Heck (3rd District). Denny is running against anti-choice conservative Jaime Herrera.

Pro-choice State Senator Claudia Kauffman (47th District). Senator Kauffman is in a tight re-election race.

Letter from the Director:

Dear Friends,

We are in the home stretch of a critical election season for women's rights and health. There's no time to lose – especially when we consider what is at stake.

As I write this letter to you, we are facing many threats to women's rights and health. The Washington Board of Pharmacy is considering rolling back our strong pharmacy access rules and allowing pharmacists to refuse to dispense valid medications for personal, non-medical reasons. The state's family planning budget is on the chopping block yet again; continuing state budget troubles mean that we will have to continue to fight to protect this critical funding next legislative session. Fake clinics, also known as "crisis pregnancy centers" or limited service pregnancy centers, are deceiving and manipulating women facing unintended pregnancies. And, anti-choice members of Congress have introduced "Stupak on Steroids," legislation that would make it harder for victims of sexual assault to access abortion care.

For these reasons and more, the midterm elections will have critical repercussions for women's rights and health. Elections matter. From re-electing our pro-choice Senator Patty Murray, to protecting our pro-choice Congressional seats, to maintaining our strong pro-choice majority in the state legislature, NARAL Pro-Choice Washington is hard at work to make sure we don't lose ground on women's health. Additionally, we are supporting Yes on I-1098, No on I-1053 and No on I-1107 because we need to make sure our state is in a position to continue funding for critical programs like family planning.

The only way to pass pro-choice policies at the state and federal levels – and to block anti-choice attacks on women's rights and health – is to elect pro-choice leaders at all levels of the ballot. And we can only do that with the financial support and volunteerism of our statewide network of members.

Together we can secure pro-choice wins this November. Please, use the Pro-Choice Voter Guide on pages 4 and 5 and cast your ballot by November 2. And give what you can, in time and money, to make sure we are celebrating electoral victories on November 3. Thank you for all that you do for the women and girls of Washington.

In peace,

Lauren B. Simonds, M.S.W.

NARAL Mobilizes to Protect Access to Health Care

Members Testify at Pharmacy Board Meetings, Send Hundreds of Letters to the Board and Governor Gregoire with One Message: Keep the Pharmacy Access Rules in Place

As we reported in our Summer 2010 Newsletter, the Washington Board of Pharmacy issued an official notice in July that they intend to draft a new pharmacy rule, and no longer require pharmacies to provide the medications patients need, including emergency contraception (also known as the morning-after pill) on site and on time.

This means that the rules that NARAL members worked to pass in 2007 that protect patient access to medications without discrimination, delay or judgment are at risk of being rolled back. Your access to health care should not be based on whether a pharmacist thinks the medication your doctor prescribes is right or wrong!

The Board held two public meetings on this issue, the first on September 17 in Renton and the second on September 29 in Kent. Dozens of NARAL members testified at these meetings in support of pharmacy access, and even more members filled the meeting rooms.

Our members told the Pharmacy Board that it is not acceptable for sexual assault survivors, people who have disabilities, or people who live in rural areas to be told they have to travel 40, 50 or even 60 miles to get the medications they need.

As of print time, NARAL activists have also sent 510 emails and 670 postcards to the Pharmacy Board and Governor Chris Gregoire urging them to stand up for patient access to health care and to keep the existing rules in place.

The Pharmacy Board is also hearing from a very vocal anti-choice minority, who see the rule-making process as the opportunity they've been waiting for to obliterate the existing rules protecting patient access in order to restrict women's access to birth control. At the Pharmacy Board meetings, conservative testifiers made some outrageous statements, including comparing rules that protect patient access to health care to Nazi Germany.

The Pharmacy Board will decide whether or not to go forward with the rule-making process at their November meeting.

In the meantime, the Board is still taking written comments on this issue. See above to take action and speak out in support of our strong pharmacy access rules. Together we can continue to protect patient access to health care.

TAKE ACTION: Visit www.ProChoiceWashington.org

to uphold the existing rules protecting patient access to health care.

BALLOT INITIATIVES

YES on I-1098

NO on I-1053

NO on I-1107

Protect Women's Health: Statewide Ballot Initiatives

NARAL Pro-Choice Washington has taken positions on three ballot initiatives. These initiatives have a direct impact on our state's ability to raise sufficient revenue to fund critical programs, including family planning care for low-income women. The outcome of these initiatives will determine whether our state can continue to provide basic health care for women and girls.

YES on I-1098: This initiative cuts the state property tax by 20%, eliminates B&O taxes for small businesses, and establishes a strictly limited income tax on the wealthiest 1.2% of households. It raises $2 billion a year dedicated to education and health care. Make sure our state continues to fund family planning care: Vote YES on 1098!

NO on I-1053: This Tim Eyman initiative requires a two-thirds vote of the legislature in order to increase state revenue, which is an obstacle to creating a responsible, balanced approach to the budget. I-1053 would allow just 17 legislators to hold the budget process hostage and block budget measures that prioritize services for those in need. Vote NO on 1053!

NO on I-1107: This initiative would repeal the small, mostly temporary tax on non-essential items like soda pop, candy, bottled water and gum. It's worth a few cents more for a can of soda to raise more than $100 million per year to fund education and health care. Stand up for women's health: Vote NO on 1107!

Elections Matter: Choice at Risk Across the Country

There is so much riding on the 2010 elections for women and girls in Washington and nationwide. We only have to take a look at other states and the U.S. Congress to see potential threats to the right to choose on the horizon. The only way to block attacks on reproductive rights and health is to elect pro-choice leaders at all levels of the ballot.

In August, Alaska voters approved a ballot initiative that mandates parental notification for minors seeking abortion care, jeopardizing the health and safety of young women who come from families with domestic violence or who believe they cannot safely tell their parents about their decision to have an abortion. California and Oregon voters have faced - and rejected - parental notification initiatives in recent elections.

This November, Colorado voters will decide a ballot initiative to grant legal "person" status to fertilized eggs. If this initiative passes, it would ban abortion, in vitro fertilization and even birth control. A nearly identical initiative was defeated in 2008.

Utah legislators passed a law in 2010 that will turn women into criminals if a court decides she has induced a miscarriage.

Five states have already banned all health insurance coverage - public and private - for abortion care in the new health care system to be set up under the federal health care reform law. Dozens more are considering similar legislation.

The U.S. Congress has introduced "Stupak on Steroids," legislation that targets rape and incest survivors and makes it more difficult for them to access abortion care.

Pro-Choice Pop Stars Sing Out!

NARAL supporters found their inner songsters at Pro-Choice Pop Star, held on Friday, September 10 at Spitfire in Seattle. Thank you to all our karaoke contest participants, our celebrity judges, our guest performers, and everyone who joined us for a fun-filled and memorable evening in support of reproductive rights!

We Need YOU: Turn Out The Pro-Choice Vote!

Ballots are hitting mailboxes and Election Day is just a couple weeks away. Now is the time to mobilize and turn out the pro-choice vote! In order to protect our pro-choice champions and elect new pro-choice leaders, we need your help. Whether you volunteer one time or ten times, you make a difference!

Direct voter contact--either over the phone or in person--is the best way to get the word out about pro-choice candidates. With your help we can reach pro-choice voters from Puget Sound to Spokane.

Here are two important (and fun!) ways to make a difference in the elections:

- Sign up to door-bell for a NARAL-endorsed candidate. We have many canvassing opportunities in different areas--contact our political field organizer, Colleen Kelly, for more information and to sign up at (206) 624-1990 or colleenkelly@prochoicewashington.org.
- Sign up for a phone bank. We'll be calling voters from our Seattle office to let them know about the pro-choice candidates running in their district as well as giving them a friendly reminder to mail in their ballot or go to the polls. Phone bank shifts are 2 hours long and we provide scripts, training, and SNACKS! Contact our volunteer coordinator, Eleazar Juárez-Díaz, at eleazarjuarez-diaz@prochoicewashington.org or (206) 624-1990 to sign up!

2011 Legislative Session Preview: Fake Clinics, Take Charge Funding and the State Budget

NARAL Pro-Choice Washington is preparing for a busy and important 2011 legislative session. Here's a look ahead:

Limited Service Pregnancy Center Legislation. Limited service pregnancy centers (often called "crisis pregnancy centers" or fake clinics) offer free pregnancy tests, "pregnancy options counseling," and sometimes ultrasound imaging. They are opposed to abortion. Some call themselves "clinics," but most provide no medical care other than free pregnancy tests and ultrasounds without medical diagnosis. There are at least 46 fake clinics operating in Washington State, in 21 counties and 33 legislative districts.

Women go to these centers thinking they will receive medical care and unbiased pregnancy options counseling. Instead, they get false or misleading information about reproductive health care, their medical records are withheld, and they are denied needed referrals for reproductive health care.

NARAL Pro-Choice Washington and our allies will again introduce legislation aimed at keeping fake clinics honest. Our legislation requires these centers to: disclose that they do not provide service or referrals for abortion or comprehensive birth control and that they do not provide medical care for pregnant women; protect the privacy of health care information collected from women seeking services; provide written pregnancy test results immediately; and only provide reproductive health information that is medically accurate.

Take Charge Funding and the State Budget. The ongoing state budget crisis forced Governor Gregoire to call for across-the-board budget cuts in September. Among those cuts was a $1.2 million reduction in the Take Charge program, which provides birth control and other family planning care for low-income women. This cut means that 43,000 women will go without basic family planning care. The state also cut $6.4 million from maternity support services, which will impact 65,000 women.

These cuts simply don't make sense. Not only is funding family planning care the right thing to do for women and families, it

Mark Your Calendar: the 2011 Reproductive Health and Rights Lobby Day is Monday, February 28. Travel with NARAL to Olympia and talk to your legislators about our limited service pregnancy center legislation and funding for family planning care. makes good fiscal sense. For every dollar the state invests in Take Charge, the federal government provides $9. Additionally, family planning funding saves the state many times what it spends in terms of preventing the costs associated with unintended pregnancies.

We will fight to reinstate Take Charge and maternity support services funding in January. In the meantime, you can contact Governor Gregoire, House Speaker Chopp and Senate Majority Leader Brown and urge them to prioritize women's health in the state budget. Visit www.ProChoiceWashington.org to take action.

NARAL Continues to Lead the Charge on Expanding Access to Real Sexual Health Education

Our Sex Education team is still hard at work, organizing support for comprehensive sex education in districts around the state. After visible success in Puyallup, Issaquah and Yakima, we are moving in to new territories, including tough school districts like Kent, West Valley (Spokane Co.) and Battle Ground. Our work is difficult but very rewarding. In Clark County, we have gathered enough passionate supporters to start their own coalition to support sex education reform for every school district in the county.

Through the support of NARAL and our partners, the Yakima school district has decided to no longer allow a prominent abstinence-only-until-marriage program to present in their schools. This shows the district's strong commitment to a new curriculum and policy that's in line with the Healthy Youth Act and is a huge step forward. Hopefully, with this change and pledge of support, we will begin to see the teen pregnancy rate in this county, which is currently the second highest in the state, take a sharp downturn.
